Direct Deposit Condition of Employment 4-OP-D-2-E Payroll: As an FSU employee, the use of direct deposit for payroll checks is a condition of employment. Once implemented, the employee's direct deposit information will remain in effect until changed by: (a) the employee, either through employee self-service or in writing; (b) the employee's legal representative, in case of legal incapacity; (c) the financial institution; or (d) Florida State University.

Workers' Compensation Program Guidelines 4-OP-G-10 Insurance, Risk Management and Workers' Compensation: I have read the Florida State University rules relative to workers' compensation and understand that all injuries must be reported immediately to my supervisor. I am to obtain authorization from Amerisys should I require any medical treatment unless the need for treatment is an emergency at which time 911 will be called immediately and Amerisys notified. All absences from work must be documented by an authorized physician and I must provide written documentation to my supervisor/department following each medical treatment. Where applicable, my department will work to provide light duty options. I must keep all medical appointments and obtain full duty clearance before returning to my normally scheduled job duties. If I am injured at work or become aware of a workers' compensation injury or illness, I have 30 days in which to report my injury or illness to my employer. Failure to report my injury within 30 days may jeopardize my claim. I have two years from the date of my injury or illness to file a claim for workers' compensation benefits. Failure to report my injury or illness within 30 days may be used as a defense against my claim regardless of the two-year statute of limitations for filing a claim. My eligibility for benefits may also be eliminated one year from the date I last received a wage replacement check or approved medical treatment.

In both circumstances, supervisors must immediately consult with the Human Resources' Employee and Labor Relations Office to determine if the offense is job related and for further guidance. Failure to comply with this policy could result in disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal.
